

COVID-19 and employment law implications for businesses

Thursday 8 July | 12.30–1.30pm

Online

Overview

Join Queensland Law Society's Industrial Law Committee members as they navigate through COVID-19 employment law implications for businesses including law firms. Topical issues for discussion include COVID-19 vaccinations, reduced hours, working remotely and casual employment.

1 CPD Point

12.20pm

Registration

12.30pm

COVID-19 and employment law implications for businesses including law firms

Join Queensland Law Society's Industrial Law Committee members as they explore employment law implications of COVID-19 for businesses including law firms. You will be provided with practical insights and solutions to topical employment law issues:

- COVID-19 vaccinations
- reduced hours
- working remotely
- casual employment.

Presenters:

Giri Sivaraman, Principal Lawyer, Maurice Blackburn Lawyers; Accredited Specialist (Workplace Relations); and Member, Queensland Law Society Industrial Law Committee

Rob Stevenson, Principal, Australian Workplace Lawyers; Accredited Specialist (Workplace Relations); Member, Queensland Law Society Industrial Law Committee and Queensland Law Society Senior Counsellor

Chair: Sandra Barry, Senior Associate, Cooper Grace Ward and Member, Queensland Law Society Industrial Law Committee

1.30pm

Close